PREFACE

Double Tax Avoidance Agreement ("DTAA") is a tax treaty signed between two or more countries to help taxpayers avoid paying double taxes on the same income. A DTAA becomes applicable in cases where an individual is a resident of one nation, but earns income in another. DTAA's can either be comprehensive, encapsulating all income sources or limited to certain areas. India presently has DTAA with 120+ countries.

The government of India and the government of Kingdom of Saudi Arabia had signed a DTAA for the avoidance of double taxation and the prevention of tax evasion with respect to taxes on income, which came into force from 1 November, 2006. The DTAA applies to the income tax and its related surcharges in India and zakat and the income tax including the natural gas investment tax in Saudi Arabia.

The DTAA inculcates various beneficial clauses like the mutual agreement procedure which specifies that the disputes related to the treaty shall be resolved amicably. Further, it also includes provisions for exchange of information related to taxation with the competent authorities in each country. The DTAA specifies that the credit method system shall be used so as to eliminate double taxation. A withholding tax rate of 5%, 10% and 10% has been agreed to between the contracting states in regards to dividend, interest and royalty. Additionally, an exemption has been granted to interests earned by government institutions.

The DTAA aims to provide tax stability to the residents of India and Saudi Arabia and facilitate mutual economic cooperation as well as stimulate the flow of investment, technology and services between the contracting states. The DTAA between India and Saudi Arabia has made efforts to adopt practices which are in consonance with the international standards as laid down in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development's ("OECD") Multilateral Convention to Implement Tax Treaty Related Measures to Prevent Base Erosion and Profit Shifting ("MLI").
